Statement of Commitment to the Principles of PRME

Prior to joining the Global Compact and PRME in 2007, the Cameron School of Business was actively involved in sharing and spreading the importance of business social responsibility and the importance of ethical business practices through its curriculum, research, and services. As we became member of PRME, we feel especially proud to see so many members institution around the world coming together and embracing similar values that are core to our school and to the University of St. Thomas mission statement.

Our business school is committed to educate students of diverse backgrounds; teaching professional skills necessary for a changing global economy and instilling a deep appreciation for ethical behavior inspired by the educational tradition of the founding Basilian Fathers.

At the Cameron School of Business, one can find diverse student-centered faculty, a wide variety of undergraduate and graduate courses aimed at developing ethical business leaders of tomorrow. In fact, our university slogan reads: "Educating leaders of faith and characters" and at Cameron School, we follow curriculum to adhere this motto.

We remain committed to the six principles of PRME and continue to develop our school activities that support and spread good, sustainable, and globally responsible business practices and essential leadership skills. We, at Cameron School, are confident that PRME as an organization has paved a noble path to promote and develop future business leaders who value corporate social responsibility and ethical business practices.
