Launched at the 2007 UN Global Compact Leaders Summit in Geneva, the Principles for Responsible Management Education (PRME) initiative is the first organised relationship between the United Nations and business schools, with the PRME Secretariat housed in the UN Global Compact Office.

The mission of PRME is to transform management education, research and thought leadership globally by providing the Principles for Responsible Management Education framework, developing learning communities and promoting awareness about the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals.

The Six Principles of PRME are inspired by internationally accepted values, such as the United Nations Global Compact's Ten Principles, and provide an engagement structure for academic institutions to advance social responsibility through incorporating universal values into curricula and research. They seek to establish a process of continuous improvement among institutions of management education in order to develop a new generation of business leaders capable of managing the complex challenges faced by business and society in the 21st century.

RESOURCES

Basic Resources on PRME
Use the following resources to better familiarize yourself with the PRME initiative.

PRME Brochure
The PRME Brochure offers basic insight into the PRME initiative, instructions on how to join, and good practice examples from institutions around the world. It is a great resource to provide to those unfamiliar to the PRME initiative.

PRME SDG Brochure
By offering parallels between PRME and the UN Global Compact as well as between business and higher education institutions, this resource demonstrates how PRME signatories can help to advance the SDGs by adhering to the Six Principles and finding opportunities to innovate to address challenges. Explore this resource and discover how your institution can transform education to act responsibly while working towards the achievement of the SDGs.
Resources on the Implementation of PRME

Use the following resources to implement PRME at your institution.

A Basic Guide to the Sharing Information on Progress (SIP)
A Basic Guide to the Sharing Information on Progress (SIP)—For Current and Prospective Signatories of the Principles for Responsible Management Education provides a simple, but powerful, tool that aims to inspire and help you to take the next step in reporting on your institution’s progress in implementing PRME.

Transformational Model for PRME Implementation
This resource is an instrumental guide on how to systemically approach the implementation of PRME. Led by the PRME Champions pilot group, the resource is based on the active support and input by the PRME community and draws on concrete examples from individual PRME schools. Inspired by the Global Compact Management Model, the Transformational Model presents eight stages of PRME implementation. Through this model, institutional transformation is seen as a strategic journey that evolves through a process of continuous improvement.

Partner with Business Schools to Advance Sustainability: Ideas to Inspire Action
PRME Champions and UN Global Compact LEAD launched this resource that provides inspiring examples of partnerships between business and business schools, categorised under a framework of five themes: Influencing, Training, Collaborating, Researching, and Consulting.

The First Report on PRME Chapters
Launched at the PRME 2015 Global Forum, The First Report on PRME Chapters provides an overview of the different PRME Chapters and their work.

Inspirational Guide 1 & 2
The Inspirational Guide volumes within the Greenleaf/PRME book series aim to cultivate and inspire actively engaged participants by offering practical examples and case studies to support the implementation of the Six Principles. They have been written with the aim of enabling participants to transition from a global learning community to an action community.
Inspired by the two previous editions, the PRME Chapter UK and Ireland compiled a third: the Inspirational Guide for the Implementation of PRME: UK and Ireland Edition, which highlights real-world examples from the most engaged PRME signatories in the region.

The Practical Guide to The United Nations Global Compact for Higher Education Institutions provides guidelines for higher education institutions in implementing the ten principles of the UN Global Compact within the organization and then leading their global adoption.

Faculty Development for Responsible Management Education is a result of a working group consisting of the PRME Champions leadership group, co-led by the Copenhagen Business School (CBS), Babson College, and the Indian Institute of Higher Education (IILM), conducting a two-year long research effort, gathering information through interviews and a survey from 160 educational institutions worldwide. The guide provides a six-step tool for designing and implementing PRME-related faculty development initiatives.

RESOURCES and BOOKS on the U.N. SDG TOPICS and PRME

Use the following resources to teach about the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

The Sustainable MBA

The Sustainable MBA: A Business Guide to Sustainability, written by PRME Secretariat Special Adviser, Giselle Weybrecht, provides the knowledge and tools to help you ‘green’ your job and organization, to turn sustainability talk into action for the benefit of your bottom line and society as a whole.

PRME Textbook: Principles of Responsible Management: Glocal Sustainability, Responsibility, Ethics

This book, lead-authored by Oliver Laasch and Roger N. Conaway, answers the urgent need for an applied and comprehensive textbook for responsible management education. It is designed to be a main textbook for sustainability, responsibility, and ethics courses at business schools. Different from most existing textbooks, which take an organization-centered perspective, “Principles of Responsible Management” pursues a manager-centered approach and covers the management of sustainability, responsibility and ethics throughout the main areas of business, from strategy to finance.
Anti-Corruption Implementing Curriculum Change in Management Education

Anti-Corruption presents comprehensive anti-corruption guidelines on how to professionalize anti-corruption education around the world. Written by international business professors and deans, the book guides academic institutions in how to adopt, adapt and develop best practice. It presents sample curricula, illustrative case studies and offers clear, hands-on recommendations.

Responsible Business: A Textbook for Theory, Practice, and Change

This book, authored by Oliver Laasch and Roger N. Conaway, is an introductory resource for courses on business sustainability, responsibility and ethics. It is an initiative of The Center for Responsible Management Education (CRME) in support of the UN Principles for Responsible Management Education initiative to close the gap in responsible business lecture materials for undergraduate students, for interdisciplinary courses, and for interactive, blended online learning environments.

Socially Responsive Organizations and the Challenges of Poverty

This book provides a combination of case studies and current action research describing how businesses and civil society organizations are working to alleviate poverty in local and global communities. It intends to provide conceptual and research rationales for why management education and management institutions must address the issue of poverty.

Responsible Management Education and the Challenge of Poverty

An invaluable guide for management educators who want to inspire a generation of leaders to tackle global poverty challenges, this book showcases innovative teaching, module development and programme designs that integrate the issue of poverty into global business management courses.

Integrating Gender Equality into Business and Management Education

This volume addresses the need to integrate gender equality into business and management education and provides examples of leading initiatives from various disciplinary and global perspectives. It is designed to help faculty integrate the topic into teaching and research.
WEBSITES

Comprehensive Anti-Corruption Guidelines for Curriculum Change

The PRME Working Group on Anti-Corruption, with support from Siemens as part of the Siemens Integrity Initiative, has developed the PRME Anti-Corruption Toolkit—a resource that provides comprehensive guidelines for incorporating the topic of anti-corruption into curriculum in business schools and higher education institutions around the world. The Toolkit contains eleven modules, which include background reading material, detailed case discussions, and an array of primary sources and scenarios. The modules can be used individually or as a stand-alone MBA course on anti-corruption. The aim of the Toolkit is to address the ethical, moral, and practical challenges that students may face in the marketplace. Visit this free open source online Toolkit to access content, suggest changes or updates to existing material, or contribute new resources, at http://actoolkit.unprme.org.

Gender Equality Global Resource Repository

The PRME Working Group on Gender Equality continues to update its online resource, the Global Gender Equality Resource Repository, a searchable web-based resource that encompasses a wide range of disciplines, including business, arts & sciences, and professional fields, and aims to assist faculty in integrating gender issues into management education. Faculty from around the globe have contributed to the ongoing development of the Repository, which consists of an inventory of case studies, syllabi, text books, best practices, related research, search engines, organisations that address gender-related topics, and more. Visit the Repository at: http://prmegenderequalityworkinggroup.unprme.wikispaces.net.

PRIMEtime blog

The PRIMEtime blog is a platform to share and discuss inspirational activities that promote the development of responsible leaders. The blog is a joint initiative of the PRME Secretariat and Giselle Weybrecht, author of The Sustainable MBA: The Manager’s Guide to Green Business. The blog brings together best practices on how to mainstream sustainability and responsible leadership into management education globally and serves as a platform to share and discuss inspirational activities that promote the development of responsible leaders. Visit the blog at primetime.unprme.org.
ADDITIONAL RESOURCES

We also encourage you to dive into our PRME Resources webpage, which contains resources to help institutions and individuals to understand and implement the PRME initiative, such as policy and procedural guidelines, materials for distribution, as well as archives of PRME publications and news, historical outcomes from PRME Assemblies and Meetings, and additional PRME community links. The UN Global Compact also has a vast array of resources that you may find interesting.
